About the State

Suit was filed Thursday in Brattle boro by Arthur P. Carpenter, attorney for Julius L. Grover of Grafton, against the Boston & Maine railroad. The suit is for $5,000 damages for the loss of the services of Mr. Grover's minor son, Henry Grover, whom he alleges was so badly injured Sept. 25, 1907, by being forcibly ejected from a train at Brattleboro that it has been impossible for him to be of any service to his parent.

Mara, the young daughter of Vin Johnson of Ludlow, was badly burned about the feet and legs Saturday evening, last, when she pulled a lighted lamp from the table. She was ready for bed and the flames quickly ignited her nightgown. Her left leg was badly burned from the knee down and the other somewhat. The burning oil scattered in all directions, but neighbors the flames and helped put them out before much damage was done.

Joseph Denzil Redway, 84 years old died at the Brattleboro Memorial hospital shortly after 8 o'clock Wednesday night, following an operation. He was born in Putney, in the West Hill district, May 25, 1816, and was the son of Joseph Thomas and Chloe (Wilson) Redway. He moved from Newfane to Brattleboro to a farm on the West river road in 1869 and came to the vilage to live four years ago. He was three times married. He leaves a wife.
